London, Feb. 4.—(INS)—Two beaming French statesmen parted today from their equally satisfied British colleagues, having deposited in the hands of Germany the fate of a new and realistic European peace pattern.

Tactically recognizing Germany's rearmament, and offering to junk at last the restrictive military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, a proposal for a new general arms agreement, "freely negotiated" on a basis of "equality of rights in a system of security," was offered to Germany, Italy and Belgium following a four-day conference of representatives of two other signatories of the Locarno Security Pact, France and Britain.

An invitation to the powers to extend the "mutual assistance" guarantees of the Locarno Pact to the air was regarded as the most important single outcome of the London meeting. Even without Germany, it is planned for the other four powers to pledge mutual aerial aid in the event of aggression, but the remainder of the scheme is predicated upon Germany's reentrance into the League of Nations and participation in the "Eastern Locarno" Security Pact.

The one cut-and-dried result of the London talks was the announcement that Britain, welcoming the Rome agreements of collaboration between France and Italy, promised to consult with those powers and any other adherents "if the independence and integrity of Austria is menaced."

After declaring that "neither Germany nor any other power whose armaments have been defined by the peace treaties is entitled by unilateral action to modify these obligations," the joint Franco-British statement continued:

"Nothing could contribute more to the restoration of confidence and the prospects of peace among nations than a general settlement freely negotiated between Germany and the other powers.... this settlement would establish agreements regarding armaments generally, which in the case of Germany would replace the provisions of Part V of the Treaty of Versailles at present limiting arms and armed forces in Germany."

Eastern security and Germany's return to the League are specifically mentioned.

If Germany does not elect to enter the "Air Locarno," agreement, the Reich could not be acted against under its terms, which state: "The signatories would undertake immediately to give the assistance of their air forces to whichever of them might be the victim of unprovoked aerial aggression by one of the contracting parties."

Causes Suspense

Washington, Feb. 4.—(INS)—The rosy optimism of high New Deal officials over a favorable Supreme Court ruling in the vital gold cases took on a more somber hue today after the court made an unprecedented announcement that it was not ready to hand down a decision.

Experienced court observers found nothing unusual in the delay. Decision in a hundred billion case in less than a month itself would have been unusual. But many New Dealers in and out of Congress had expected the court to leap to a decision and clear up uncertainty over constitutional abrogation of the gold clause in public and private bonds.

RESERVE BOARD
TO BUILD AGAINIntimation Forwarded That Governmental Banking
Activities Will Be
Combined SoonBy Robert S. Thornburgh
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 4.—(INS)—Plans for the erection of another monumental structure were made public today by Governor M. S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board.

In connection with the announcement of Eccles and Dr. Adolph Miller, chairman of the building committee, that all banking activities of the government would be combined within five years.

In planning the new reserve building, arrangements were made for housing the Reserve Board, the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and the office of the Comptroller of the Currency.

Miller indicated plainly that it was the intention of the government to consolidate the banking activities. However, he did not say under what jurisdiction they would be combined. Some experts expressed the belief that the administration would recommend to congress the establishment of a department of banking under a new cabinet officer. This was considered a logical step because of the federal control of banking taken over by the government through the FDIC.

Under the FDIC the government has assumed for the first time in the history of the nation the control not only of the member banks of the federal reserve system but the non-member state banks. Eventually all banks in order to be insured under the corporation must be members of the Federal Reserve system. In effect, this means that there will be a single system of banking in the United States, a situation that never has existed heretofore.

In planning the Federal Reserve building, which will be located on Constitution avenue in the neighborhood of three of the country's most beautiful buildings—the academic dome of science, the Lincoln memorial and the public health bureau—the board selected a group of the nation's leading architects to submit plans for the structure. It will be constructed of white marble and will cost somewhat over a million dollars.

Congress Will Hear
Bill of CommunistsLundeen Bill Estimated to Cost Eleven Billion
A Year

Washington, Feb. 4.—(INS)—For the first time in history, a Congressional sub-committee today began hearings on a bill for which the communist party is making a nationwide campaign.

The measure is the Lundeen unemployment insurance and old-age pension bill, estimated to cost $11,000,000,000 a year.

The hearing was held by a house labor sub-committee of which Rep. Matthew Dunn (D) of Pennsylvania, only blind member of the house, is chairman.

Endorsement of the bill was formally announced by a spokesman for the communist party in denouncing the administration's economic security bill as a "fake."

The measure was introduced by Rep. Ernest Lundeen (FL) or Minnesota, but not as a communist bill. It has the support of Chairman Connery (D) of Massachusetts of the Labor Committee and many trade unions.

Among the first witnesses will be Broadus Mitchell of Johns Hopkins University, Elmer Brown of the typographical union, Elmer Rice, the dramatist, and Herbert Benjamin, newspaper writer, had been announced as the first witness but his name was stricken from the list.

Other addresses of Dr. Warmingham during his five days' visit in Lexington included talks at the banquet of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. cabinet, the Young Peoples' Religious council, University Training School convocation, Bryan Station High school convocation, and the dinner meeting of the Founders' organization.

Library Receives
Costly SculptureDonations Made by Mr. Snyder and Mrs. Frederick
H. Von Engelken

Announcement of the receipt of two valuable pieces of sculpture was made by the University library Saturday. The replicas were made by Joel T. Hart, the great Kentucky artist and sculpturer.

One is a plaster cast bust of Henry Clay, which Mr. Hart made in 1847, and was presented to the library by William R. Snyder, 425 West Fourth street. At present the original bust is in the possession of the Clay heirs at Ashland, Henry Clay's home. It was made by Mr. Hart as a commission for Gen. Leslie Combs. It was then presented to a friend of General Combs, Mr. Daniel Vertner, who in turn willed it to his nephew, Vertner Johnson. Mr. Johnson then gave it to his sister, Rosa Vertner Johnson Rhett, who later sold it to Mrs. Henry McDowell.

The other sculpture by Mr. Hart was one lent by Mrs. Fredrick H. Von Engelken, New York City, a native Lexingtonian. The bust is a marble replica of the famous "I Penseur," which Mr. Hart executed and presented to Hart Gibson, Mrs. Von Engelken's father.

Spree To Down Weakened Commodore Team

Kentucky's high-flying basketball team took undisputed leadership of the Southeastern conference besides taking another step towards national championship honors by their great display of basketball in downing Alabama 33-26 and Vanderbilt 58-22 on consecutive nights and handicapped by the long road trip.

Tonight the Wildcats continue their rambling to play St. Xavier in Cincinnati.

Alabama's Crimson Tide presented an exceptionally rangy outfit, with the first team averaging 6 feet 4 inches. With this height advantage the Tidesmen were able to gain control of the tipoff and they had little difficulty in getting the ball from the backboards. The Wildcats were forced to make all their shots effective or lose possession of the ball "Big Ed" Edwards led all the scorers for the night with 21 markers. Dave Lawrence and Jack Turner were kept under close guard and had few opportunities to count. The 'Cats took only eleven shots at the hoop during the entire first half. Coach Rupp made only one substitution, when Jim Goforth replaced "Andy" Anderson at one of the guard posts when Anderson was retired from the game with four fouls. The defensive work of the whole team was one of the high spots of the victory.

As if in retaliation for the close game of the previous evening, the whole Kentucky squad went on a scoring spree once more, counting from all angles, as the 'Cats overwhelmed Vanderbilt's Commodores 58-22, to eliminate one of their chief rivals in the race for the Southeastern conference title, who had previously been unbeaten.

The Commodores, handicapped by the absence of Dick Plasman, their ace scorer and all-conference end in football, and the injury sustained in the opening minutes of play by Carlross, a regular guard, were never a threat to the Kentuckians.

Edwards started the scoring with a field goal and Warfield Donahue and Dave Lawrence made foul shots and from then on the 'Cats were never headed. Edwards was again high man for the night with 18 points, with Ralph Carlisle second with 10 markers. With the exception of "Duke" Ellington, every man on the first two teams scored. This victory placed Kentucky out in front in the conference standing.

GRADES

Grade: a step or degree in rank, dignity, quality, order, etc.; arrange in a regular series; to take rank—such is the definition given by a modern dictionary. Of course, when we say grade we do not mean it in that sense, but in the sense of the standard by which our "intelligence" is measured.

For the past two or three weeks grades have again taken their place as the main topic of conversation. Some are good and some are bad, but they all have to be discussed.

Many students, of course, did not receive the grade in a certain subject they thought they deserved. Many received a higher grade than they thought was coming to them, but no one kicks about that kind of grade.

High grades may be a great benefit in some cases in aiding the student to secure a job after he is graduated, that is, if the employment is of the type where the person's past record will do him any good, a surplus of "As" and "Bs" will no doubt place him above others who are trying for the same position, but who do not have such a good record to show. However, in the majority of cases it is not what the person has done while he was in college, but what he is able to do after he has put his books behind him.

When the time comes for the person to show whether or not he possesses the knowledge and ability to do the job given him by the one who pays him for his services, the grades he received while in college become of little importance. It is said that the one who works to get the most out of a course and worries the least about his grade is the one who will eventually end up ahead of the others.

Nine times out of 10 that statement holds true, but when a person is in college his grades are the standard by which he is classified in the eyes of the authorities. There are many cases where the person who has made a "D" out of a course has learned just as much as the person who received an A, but you can't tell that to the professors, because they always refer to grades when they compare knowledge.

CHIP ON THE SHOULDER

One of the more important arguments advanced by the nationalists concerning the United States' staying out of another war is that if we possessed an army, navy and weapons of war, second to no other nation, such would be the greatest possible assurance against future war. Is this really a sound argument? Human nature is sure to play an important part in such matters, and since it can not be overlooked, it would be expedient to delve into its peculiar functionings.

One of the most prominent psychologists of today, when questioned as to whether a nation, armed better than any other was not the most effective method for preventing future warfare, gave an extremely logical and convincing answer. He compared the heavily-armed nation to the child with his new air rifle, or the sportsman with his expensive and superior rifle or fishing rod and reel. Both of these individuals long to try their skill and test the efficiency of the weapons, and it is not hard for them to find something to furnish sufficient excuse to use these articles. The scientist continued his discussion of the question by saying that as we invent more effective bombs, airplanes, and ships, we acquire a superiority complex thereby placing the proverbial chip on our shoulders towards other nations. We forget what war means and think only that we are "good enough" to defeat any nation that might cross us.

Here is human nature working AGAINST the nationalists, who have used it in their arguments so often of late in saying that it can not be changed and therefore, there always will be war.

A nation with a chip on its shoulder is undesirable. Human nature will tend to bring this undesirable state about if conditions being discussed are allowed to take place. From an international viewpoint, a chip on the shoulder is not only expensive, but it involves persons who are not to blame for such actions, and threatens the very progress of mankind. We as individuals are supposed to be living in an advanced age. Let us not turn back the pages of time through warfare, but put our interests to work at something really useful.

TO PUT AWAY CHILDISH THINGS

Harvard University is nationally recognized as an institution that turns out at graduation a class of socially stereotyped men. Manners, political thought, philosophy—all the same. Exemplifying the American gentleman.

Individually, however, is not stifled by the social traditions of the school, for a system has been devised to further develop independence of thought, and consequently individuality. No rolls for attendance at classes are called for upperclassmen. "Come if you wish. If not—don't." Weekly quizzes, quarterly tests and semester examinations have been placed on the shelf with the dodo bird. But one request is made for a check on the amount of knowledge the student has absorbed—one examination in June.

What is the reason behind this unusual method of education? It is not to save the expense of editing and correcting of test papers. It is a psychological experiment, the success of which depends on the assumption that appeal to the intellectual independence of the mind is more remunerative than appeal to the mind's submissiveness to compulsory instruction. Such an assumption is wholly logical and based on historical fact.

It is not necessary that we abolish our examinations, it is not necessary to cease watching attendance; but it is most advisable to create that "Come-if-you-want-to" attitude. For after all, students are in college of their own free will. They are there not to pass examinations but to pack their minds. If this packing is done at short intervals, such as from examination to examination, and then forgotten because it is not needed for any future examination, it is packing that will soon work itself out of the mind.

However, aware that what he learns must be remembered for nine months, the student will undoubtedly learn well and retain permanently all that is required.

We need have no radical change in our educational system to attain a perseverance in chasing knowledge—a perseverance that will serve to brighten a spot in any future vocation. We need only an attitude prevalent among collegians that they are paying dearly in time and hard currency for the instruction they receive. Institutions and deans need only to build up gradually a consciousness of the privileges granted to students and the value of the knowledge that is there for the taking.—The Creightonian.

Columbia University (New York City) physicists last year undertook to measure the size of the neutron during the past year. This is one of the newer sub-atomic particles, having mass but no electric charge. Its diameter was fixed at .000000000001 inch.

Billy Was Young Then
We have heard recently some sort of a story about Billy King of the KA lodge....He used to court Alice Lang Vance, y'know....Well as the story goes, they used to fight every evening just so they could make up again....but to get on the trail—one night Alice slapped Billy's face during a heated scrap, and Billy, who sought means of making a dramatic exit for the benefit of a room full of his high school friends, strode majestically from the room....All was fine until he got near the door....It seems there was a small rug on a polished floor....Billy gauged his steps rather poorly....It must have been most entertaining to see the self-contained King lad sprawling....

ABC Staff.
We are told that Anna Best Clark, the Paris confection, dots on ATO Bill Amx. And now that PhilDelt Joe Arvin is back among us, we wonder whether the little TriDelt will favor Bill any longer. Amx is a demon with the women, so....

Along the same line, do you suppose maybe Phi Beta Kappa Marge Powell stops to pine just a little now that Alpha Sig Morton Holbrook has gone off to help Prexy Roosevelt steer the nation back on its course?....

Little Caskey, who remarked that she has time on her hands on account of her two watches, finds it a most satisfying little ad. Among others, we note that Joe Spice has become band sponsor conscious.

We Didn't Know That.
We have a class with Sunny Day, the editor extraordinary, and the class, which is in the Political Science department, teaches aspiring young men to be wise in the great game of politics. Pause, my friends, and look upon our future president, Mrs. Day always said it would happen....

SSSSSSSSSSSS!
We wonder whether a certain Delt doesn't feel bad that a little Kappa has left for Ward Belmont. We mean, does John Staples sigh since Sue Swinford saluted south?....

Aw, Blank Blank Blank.
One of the activities of a Transylvania Park lodge was sorely in need of a little entertainment the other evening, so he commanded an innocent little freshman thus: "Call the Delt house and ask if they're having open house for us this Friday." Which the freshman did. The Delt with whom he talked had four words to say in reply to the query. They're in the headline.

Oh Yes, the Deductions.
First of all, that Pi Kap Frank Burger is awfully Spic conscious....That Coffman isn't afraid of the big bad KA pin and goes right on courting Kappa Lucille Thornton....That Alpha Delta Theta Margaret Scott will have poor Triangle Bill Duncan's scalp if she gets half the chance....Delt Jack Crain thinks Evelyn Carroll from Georgetown is quite a gal....J. B. Wells, the Lambda Chi's nomination for a man of affairs, has come back to school....Imagine J. B. getting up before noon....Another of the inmates of that lodge is all through playing, Jimmy Richardson's little Ashland friend has come to school....One-person nomination for the perfect blank expression—that of Kappa Sig Charlie Stephenson.

There is no earthly reason why any particular individual should take it upon herself to criticize the rest of the mob; inasmuch as the mob probably criticizes her, but it's one of those indoor pastimes to take a slant on people who seem to be out of the ordinary in simple small aspects.

For instance, there's the prof who walks about in a daze with his head about four inches ahead of the rest of his body; then there's the one who strolls along with a great smile of satisfaction; he takes deep breaths and beams upon mankind in general. There's another who's as broad as he is long; it's hard to tell whether he walks or rolls, but his steps are mincing and quick.

There's a football player who wears once-gray corduroys that have been washed so often they appear dead white and fit him skin tight. There's a little dark sophomore with curling eyelashes quite unlike anybody else's. There's an engineer with cropped hair; he's not quite in his own class, but at least he got here first.

Oddities are ordinary things. Take Robby and his high shoes. Or Delmar and his basketball game with his musical accompaniment. Or even Slim back in the press room who struts along with his eye shield and a cigarette hanging out of one corner of his mouth. There's nobody around who possesses a walk anywhere near like Darnell's. And true to form, the little Darnell with the family strut will continue to amuse us after Mills is gone. By the way, have you met Mr. Shovea? Jay Lucian never gives a telephone number. When the operator queries, "University?", Jay commands, "Gimmie the Lexington Herald, or the city jail." He's the only person I ever saw get away with it.

When Tommy Atkins gets going on something he believes in, he gets a pained look on his face as if he were bothered with athlete's foot or some such. Sag Kash thinks he would make a good Mohammedan Bob Dickey, who plays the organ in a most fascinating manner, peers almost blankly in front of him when he's filling memorial hall with melody.

Jack Crain, who prides himself on being the top of Breathitt county, goes back every now and then to freshen up on his accent. Ben Taylor really gives em their money's worth when he sings. Ben rares back and lets the thunder come forth, with a little head swinging thrown in.

If you want something awfully funny, something that's ordinary and apt to be taken for granted, but a real rib tickler when you get to thinking about it, just watch Prof. Farquhar teach a class sometime.

CAMPUS PERSONALITIES

By CAPEL McNASH

Elizabeth Jett is a native of Brookville, Ky., which she says, is named after Brooks, who first settled there, rather than the brook which flows through it. Before she was seven Betty had traveled in 40 of the 48 states, and since that time has re-visited many of these places. She prefers Florida to California because the nights there are not so cold, and because people are also "nicer".

Elizabeth has dimples and brown eyes, and is interested in almost anything. When she was very young she and her friends gave a circus, the proceeds of which they used to buy a poor old fellow a pair of socks. She once got seasick when traveling over one of those wavy roads in Florida, but is really a good sailor, having withstood successfully a rough voyage to Cuba, and a trip to Catalina Island, off the coast of California.

While at Catalina, Elizabeth took a ride in a glass-bottomed boat, for the purpose of viewing the sea-life. She says she isn't quite sure who was the most astonished, the people looking down at the fish, or the fish looking up at the people.

Will Rogers and Stepin Fetchit are her favorite actors, and she usually orders a Coca-Cola when at Dunn's. Elizabeth's idea of Paradise is very specific, and consists of a certain sandy little lake in Florida, surrounded by a forest. Someday she hopes to live there.

Of those who may chance to read this column, the most surprised of all undoubtedly will be Elizabeth Jett, who does not know she was interviewed.

INSTANT INTERVIEWS

By RANDY RASH

This is a new column that will be devoted to opinions of persons on the campus. One or more questions will be asked various persons during the week and their answers printed in an undiluted form. It is hoped that the answers will be interesting and humorous because of their spontaneity.

QUESTION: Is it your intention to send any valentines this February and if so will they be sentimental or comic?

ANSWER: J. Delmar Adams, "I won't say because if I told you they'd all catch up with me."

ANSWER: Cameron Coffman, "I am not intending to send any; I'm broke."

ANSWER: A. W. Kelly, English Dept., "Neither. But since I only like to be 'pressed' by the ladies on Valentine day and not by the 'press' my answer is not for publication."

ANSWER: Mrs. George "Cleo"

Smith, English Dept., "My dear child I probably won't send any at all."

ANSWER: Lorraine Leperé, "A long about Valentines Day is a very appropriate time to settle long standing grievances, and so it would be better for me to wait until later to say definitely 'yes' or 'no'."

QUESTION: Would you choose that your boy friend smoke, and if so would you like for him to indulge in a pipe, cigar, or cigarette, and why?

ANSWER: Phyllis Caskey, "I like the pipe and cigarette but not the cigar; it belongs to older men."

ANSWER: "Tottie" von Borries, "I like the pipe and cigarette best for to me a cigar associates itself with a prizefighter."

ANSWER: Marie Vernon, "I should prefer he smoked a pipe. Then he would look better."

ANSWER: Sarah Slack, "Yes, and I would have him smoke cigarettes because then I would have something to smoke too."

ANSWER: Louise Kuykendall, "A pipe; I just adore them."

ANSWER: Bettie Bosworth, "I ain't proud, I don't care what they smoke."

1631—The ship "Lyon" from Bristol arrives at Massachusetts Bay, bringing Roger Williams and 26 passengers, as well as provisions, ending long famine of colonists.

1869—Pennsylvania grants Ursinus College a charter. Located at Collegeville, Pennsylvania, it is co-educational and affiliated with the Reformed Church in the United States.

1899—Pope makes College of Ottawa, Canada, Roman Catholic University.

1918—Submarine sinks British transport "Tuscania," carrying American troops to Europe.

1928—The Rev. William Elliot Griffiths, author and educator, dies at the age of 85. The Rev. Griffiths received his A.M. from Rutgers in 1869 and his D.D. from Union College in 1884. Went to Japan in 1870 to organize school system and was professor at Imperial University, Tokyo, from 1872 to 1874. Author of many books on China and Japan.

Toast by The Daily Orange, of Syracuse University (N. Y.): "To the ladies, who are like watches, pretty enough to look at, sweet faces and delicate hands, but somewhat difficult to regulate when set going."

Optimism: Both James and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., filled in blanks on their Harvard matriculation record this year, and for "permanent address" wrote in "The White House, Washington."

It was during the popularity of Will Rogers' picture, "State Fair" last year that Professor Blank at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks acquired the nickname which has remained. They call him (students do) "Blue Boy."

As the student baptizer explained it, "He's the prize bore."

What the future holds as figured out by students in the University of Minnesota law school in Minneapolis:

"A" men make the teachers.
"B" men make the judges.
"C" men make the money.
"And," added a wit, "the 'D' men the Congressmen."

This year approximately 33,000 students will receive some $6,000,000 in scholarships, while a smaller group will receive nearly a million in graduate fellowships.

Special Announcement

The contest has begun for February and in case some of you young writers don't know the particulars—one dollar each will be given for the best poem and best short story each month for the next four months. All contributions must be sent in to this column, so get busy and make a "small bit of change". We are challenging you—it doesn't make a bit of difference whether you think you can write, leave that for the judges to decide—it doesn't hurt to try, you know. We are asking for it, now give it to us.

Subway Interlude

Motley faces,
Drawn, worn,
Tired, haggard.
No beauty, only faces.
Ah! But there is a pretty one.
She took the seat I offered.
My southern accent
Gallantly raced through the car.
She sighed and smiled,
And then she turned away.
I know not why, but from
That moment I have loved her always,
And she, me.

"R. J."

The most popular Book-of-the-Month selection in years!

"The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" stands today an accepted modern classic! It is great literature and has assumed a place among the great novels of all time.

Franz Werfel wrote five years upon this heroic novel which tells of a desperate little band of men and women who fought against incredible odds for their lives, their homes, their faith.

An American Tom Jones in modern dress.

Fulton Oursler has written "Joshua Todd" in an engaging style and has particularly made it a narrative which picks up a morsel of human flesh and spirit at birth, sends him through a series of experiences and adventures, trials and tribulations, joys and sorrows, then drops him at death or marriage or some other convenient stopping place.

The author of "Serena Blandish" has written another novel, "National Velvet"—and the secret is out; she is Enid Bagnold; Lady Jones in private life.

Emanie Sachs is working very hard on her "Kentucky" book. Upon being asked why she writes books, she replied, "Because I like to." Well, after all, there is no comeback for that one.

Ben Stolberg believes that Russia has hope; nothing, he advocates, that happens to the individual really matters—only the mass.

Something to look for in the future—Robert Nathan's "The Road of the Ages."

It was quite a sensational discovery to find that among the best-sellers, that hilarious book, "The Glorious Pool" made its first appearance by catapulting into position over "Anthony Adverse".

The New York Times Book Review of January 27 has a very striking etching of the "Peace Conference". Grim and gruesome but how true.

Dickens, Corelli, Garvice, Van Gogh, and Foulkner found in one Howard Spring!

English critics are having a rather hard time placing his first novel "Shabby Tiger".

The editor of "Esquire" has written a novel called "Cast Down the Laurel". The story deals with a great pianist and a young girl who was his protegee.

Every star has been a nova in its time....

Portrait of the Young Man as an Artist

For John Shelby Richardson that they can touch the keys and What strength is in his slender hands, what mystic spell that they can touch the keys and make such music swell?

What hidden sorcery is here, what magic thing to draw this poignant melody from tightened string?

What power lies beyond the flesh, what great desire that flame of his can rise and touch my heart to fire?

What soul of artist is his own that he can play till beauty lifts my soul again from shattered clay?

JEST AMONG US

"Students vote to defend country if its invaded"—headline. Phew, that makes us feel safer.

All things considered, the "Snicker colyum" seems more like a grim smile than a snicker lately.

If all these reports about that big dam in Tennessee are true, us poor Kentuckians better be careful or the back water will be floodin' us pretty soon.

Huey Long must be getting along after all. He uses the entire state militia as a bodyguard.

Headline: "Best band in Dixie" Sponsor named." It may be a natural curiosity, but the Jester can't help wondering what they call her now.

The Jester has heard it said that absence makes the heart grow fonder, but his 'outs' have always failed to affect his profs that way.

Reading for recreation, special study, on hobbies, was sketched and books listed for the pre-school child, adolescent boy or girl and adult. LIBRARY STATISTICS FOR VISITORS GIVEN

According to the number of persons using the reading and browsing rooms of the University library, the week of December 9 to 15 was the second busiest week since the occupation of the new library building in 1932. The week of November 14 to 20, 1932 was the time of greatest amount of study and research with a daily average for that period being 2,171 persons entering the building.

Last December the total attendance during the record week was 10,240, an average of 1,462 daily for the general library. Estimates show that Wednesdays are the busiest days for libraries, 1,786 persons having visited the building on Wednesday of that week.

Second Eclipse of Year Seen Sunday

A partial eclipse of the sun was visible in Lexington Sunday. The eclipse began about 9 o'clock a. m. and lasted until 11 o'clock, reaching its maximum about 10:10 o'clock. At the maximum of the eclipse the moon covered approximately one-third of the surface of the sun, so that little difference was noted in the amount of daylight.

Sunday's eclipse was visible at sunrise on the west coast, traveled eastward, ending on the Atlantic coast at 12:33.

This year is replete with eclipses, as there will be five of the sun and two of the moon, the largest number that can occur during one year. One eclipse of the sun has already occurred this year on January 5. Another one of the moon was visible on January 9.

PEACE DESIRED BY COLLEGIANS

Questionnaire Sponsored By A. C. P. Denotes Increase in Anti-War Sentiments

R.O.T.C. TRAINING SCORE

Madison, Wis. (ACP)—Exact and definite proof that college students are becoming more active in peace movements was gained here today when results of a questionnaire sent to college newspaper editors and college presidents throughout the country by Collegiate Digest and Associated Collegiate Press were tabulated.

Approximately 400 college editors and presidents answered a series of questions on military training and peace movements, and from their answers it was discovered that 120 college presidents and 131 college editors have noticed a definite increase in sentiment in favor of peace movements. Fifty presidents and 56 college editors did not feel there was any noticeable increase in this respect.

Conversely, only 15 presidents and 13 editors declared they noticed any increase in sentiment for either compulsory or optional R. O. T. C.

More closely divided were both the editors and presidents on the question: Do you personally favor the entire abandonment of military training on your campus? Answering in the affirmative were 27 presidents and 56 editors, while 35 presidents and 50 editors were opposed.

R. O. T. C. is compulsory in 24 of the schools included in the poll, optional in 17, and not given in 150, according to the editors, while gymnasium work is required at 147 institutions, optional in 28, and not required in 15.

Exactly 152 of the colleges represented by their editors are not obligated to the federal government to maintain a military course, while the answers given by the presidents bring the total to 168.

Most prominent among the student organizations which tend to develop interest in peace movements are International Relations clubs, some of them affiliated with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and others purely local. Fifty groups having this name were mentioned. Other groups sponsoring peace movements and discussions are the League for Industrial Democracy, the National Students League, Peace societies, and the United Front Against War. Also active in this respect are the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

CRYPTOGRAPHY

Experts on important books in the literary world will have a chance to prove their superiority in solving Cryptographs with this week's puzzle, for it is concerned with a volume written by—well, we suppose we might as well give you at least one clue—Lord Byron. That is about all we can tell you about it now, for if we told you any more we would be working it all out for you.

But before we give you this week's brain teaser, here is the answer to last week's stickler:

Hitler, queried concerning lieutenant with Semitic cognomen, quotes: "What's in a name? That which we call a Rose (nberg)." And now here's the new one:

GOOD RECORD MADE BY MARION FARMERS

The dairy herds of seven Marion county farmers recently passed the Federal test for Bang's disease. These farmers, all members of the Dix River Dairy Herd Improvement association, have been improving their herds for five years, eradicating diseased and poor producing animals and building up production. They now have highly desirable herds free from disease. As a result they are being flooded with inquiries for stock for sale, and report being offered good prices for clean, healthy cows with good production records, according to Boyd Wheeler, tester for the Dix River association.

SURVEY TO BE PUBLISHED

The archaeological survey of Kentucky has gone to press. The efforts of almost eight years of research are now in the hands of the galley proof readers. The publication, compiled and written by Prof. William Webb and Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, will be available in the spring of 1935. It will be the second volume of reports in Anthropology and Archaeology. Because of limited appropriations, gratis distribution of this survey will not be possible.

A 1933 survey of 531 leading colleges and universities disclosed that 315 of them maintained employment offices of some sort for their graduates. Of the 400,000 enrolled in these institutions at the time the survey was made, 16,298 students were placed as teachers and 5,692 in other occupations.

AT TRYING TIMES... TRY A Smooth OLD GOLD

Although facing the double handicap of playing two of the best opposing quintettes in the conference on successive nights after tiresome road trips, the Big Blue team came through unscathed to gain undisputed lead in the Southeastern conference. Alabama gave the 'Cats a close game but the Kentuckians superiority was apparent throughout the game.

They then met Vanderbilt, a team holding victories over six conference opponents, including Alabama. The Wildcats were tired from the Alabama game and the road trip and they fully realized they faced probable defeat. This brought out their real reserve of power and their more than 30-point victory with liberal use of substitutes showed what they could do.

After such a performance, the hope that Kentucky has the best team in the nation rises higher than ever. Their tentative return game with New York University will have considerable bearing on this as will their game with Creighton, the leaders of the middle West and conquerors of the leading teams on the west coast.

Anderson, Edwards and Lawrence have shown consistent brilliance in their work this season. The popularity of Anderson with the crowds has been brought out by the ovations he has received after leaving each game. In New York the metropolitan critics voted him the best guard to perform there this season. Already the question of All-American for him is raised. Some say Edwards and Anderson for Kentucky. Edwards has played great ball for a sophomore on the team. Anderson is a junior and Lawrence is a senior. A sophomore has the added advantages of convincing sportsmen who have never seen him perform.

The best chance of getting the two All-Americans for Kentucky is to concentrate on Anderson and Lawrence. Lawrence was an All-American inter-scholastic player and his improvement has been enough to give him the highest honor in basketball. His fine work as a co-captain eliminated all bick-

Five Dual Meets To Comprise 1935 Schedule of Cindermen; Strong Squad Foreseen

EXPECT 15 TO REPORT

Approximately 15 candidates are expected to report to Coach Bernie Shively for the first practice session of the 1935 track season which will be held Monday, February 11, on Stoll field.

Joe Rupert, weight man; Hocker, miler and two miler, and Ben Willis, sophomore dash and hurrier man, are expected to furnish the nucleus for the current edition of Kentucky's cinder squad. Besides Rupert and Hocker, other letter men left from last year's team are Coffman, hurdler; Ellis, half miler; Hay, pole vaulter; Heckman, weight man, Long and Olney, quarter-milers. Olney also participates in the high jump.

The Wildcat cinder artists will participate in five dual meets and the Southeastern Conference meet at Birmingham, Ala., May 18. The present schedule shows two meets scheduled for April 20, one with Vanderbilt here and the other with Georgia Tech there. Vanderbilt will probably be shifted to April 13, with Georgia Tech holding the date of April 20.

The team will journey to Hanover, Ind., for a meet with the Hanover college squad on April 27. April 30, the Berea Mountaineers will invade the Wildcat stronghold, with the Tennessee Vols, following them on May 4. The Wildcats will journey to Birmingham on May 18 to compete in the Southeastern conference track meet.

Any student wishing to try out for the team may get his equipment at the gymnasium either Thursday or Friday afternoon and report to Coach Shively on Stoll field Monday afternoon.

SUPREME COURT DECISION UPHELD

Former Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Air Mail Company Attorney Held Guilty of Contempt

Washington, Feb. 4.—(INS)—The Supreme Court today upheld the Senate in finding William P. Macracken, Washington lawyer, guilty of contempt for defiance of the Senate Air Mail Investigating Committee.

Macracken, former assistant secretary of commerce for air and later attorney for many air mail companies, failed to produce important papers for the investigating body.

Justice Brandeis delivered the opinion. After Macracken had been apprehended and tried by the Senate and sentenced to 10 days imprisonment, he carried his fight to District of Columbia supreme courts.

The Court of Appeals held that since papers sought from Macracken had been destroyed after he was subpoenaed, with his consent, he did not have them and therefore violated no law in not producing them.

Macracken on his first appearance before the committee refused to produce papers, pleading immunity because of confidential relations between attorney and client. The committee suggested that he consult the air mail companies.

He did so and received consent from all but two companies, their representatives went through the files and removed many letters.

PAROLE SYSTEM SCORED IN TALK

Head of Department of Federal Investigation Says Too Much Judicial Clemency Shown

Washington, Feb. 4.—(INS)—Condemning the criminal parole system in states and local communities, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation, charged one out of every eight persons arrested in connection with 32 kidnapping cases handled by the Justice department had received some form of judicial clemency.

Hoover's testimony was made public today in hearings on the Justice department appropriations before the House appropriations committee. He cited the case in which three women of the Dillinger gang were arrested by agents.

"These three girls were brought before the Federal judge at Madison, Wisconsin," Hoover asserted. "They pleaded guilty and the judge immediately placed them on probation."

"Within two weeks thereafter each one of these three girls was right back with the members of the Dillinger gang, one of them, the wife of 'Baby Face' Nelson, was in the gun battle that resulted in the killing of one of your agents recently." He said the parole system of the various states and committees "should be looked into."

"Big Day" Looms For Young Singer

Young Opera Debutante Says It's Stage Fright and Loss of Appetite

New York, Feb. 4.—(INS)— Suppose you were 21, pretty and American, and were to make your debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company on Friday night. Would you be frightened? Would you be happy?

Little Mary Moore is both. Mary, who hails from the Washington Heights section of good, old Manhattan Island, and is the youngest Metropolitan debutante since Marion Talley, admitted today she was so excited she couldn't eat or sleep.

She referred to her appetite as the "dear departed."

"Oh, dear," she exclaimed, hoarsely, "I wish it were a week from today and it was all over. But isn't everything wonderful? Lily Pons invited me to tea last week. Can you imagine! Me!"

Mary is going to carry a little flat prayer book in her shoe and a lucky ring on her finger when she steps onto the metropolitan stage to sing the role of Gilda in Verdi's Rigoletto. She hopes to charm "Lady Luck" with them. Oh, yes, and under her costume will be a bit of Irish green ribbon and a piece of the dress she wore at her audition.

Mary studied voice culture for six years before she got her audition with the Metropolitan. Her only previous operatic experience was with a small company in Baltimore.

Her contract with the Metropolitan has three years to run.

Sen. Norris Strikes At Spoils System

Washington, Feb. 4.—(INS)—Efforts of Senator Norris (R) Nebraska, to rid this and future administrations of what he terms "Farleyism" culminated today in his introduction of a bill in the Senate designed to take the post office department out of control and domination of partisan politics. Norris, who said in the Senate that President Roosevelt's re-election depends much upon whether or not he curbs the patronage practices of his Postmaster general, asks that the Postmaster general be appointed by the President for a 10-year term with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Concerning Farley's unprecedented control as Post master, general and chairman of the Democratic national committee, Norris requests that "no post master or other official of the Post Office department, including the Post master General himself, shall be chairman or a member of any political committee and shall not take part in the management of any political campaign."

Just what is meant by cross-blending tobaccos . . . and how does it make a cigarette milder and taste better . . .

Well, in blending you take two or more tobaccos and mix them together—a rather simple process. But cross-blending goes a step further . . .

IN making Chesterfields we take Bright tobacco from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida. We take Burley tobacco from Kentucky and Tennessee, and tobacco from Southern Maryland.

Then in addition to these home-grown tobaccos we take tobacco grown in Turkey and Greece.

We balance these mild, ripe home-grown tobaccos with the right amounts and the right kinds of aromatic Turkish.

Then, instead of just mixing the tobaccos together, we blend and cross-blend them so that all the different flavors go together into one full flavor—the Chesterfield taste that so many smokers like.

Cross-blending tobaccos as it is done in Chesterfields gives the cigarette a pleasing taste and aroma—they're mild and yet They Satisfy.
